NEW FONTAINE® HEAVY-HAUL RENEGADE N12 FEATURES 12-INCH LOADED DECK HEIGHT

Fontaine Heavy-Haul, the recognized technology leader and innovator in the lowbed trailer industry, is introducing a new trailer that features a 12-inch loaded deck while maintaining 4-inches of ground clearance – the new Fontaine Renegade N12. “This remarkable new ‘mini-deck’ trailer with its low 12-inch deck height gives equipment haulers and freight companies greater hauling versatility,” explained Todd Anderson, VP Sales and Marketing. “Complementing its low deck height is the dual-pawl 7-position gooseneck ride height control to help clear obstructions for even greater trailer flexibility.” Anderson concluded.

This advanced technology lowbed trailer is remarkably strong AND lightweight. It handles 30 tons in 16 feet or 30 tons in 20 feet with the addition of an optional flip axle. Even with nearly 33' of open deck and 53' overall length, the N12 still only weighs 20,525 lbs. At the core of this trailer is its engineered box beam design featuring full width crossmembers on 18" centers. The twin box beams are the backbone of the trailer providing exceptional torsional stability to help prevent twisting. More importantly, both beams share the same centers with the gooseneck tower and gooseneck base, providing the N12 with outstanding pulling and tracking capability.

If you would like to learn more about this exceptional trailer, check out the N12 Video under the Video Tab at the Fontaine Heavy-Haul website. Your local Fontaine Heavy-Haul dealer can help you specify the right lowbed trailer configuration for your application.
